EPIDEMIC BAN REMOVED

Board of Health Finds Improvement in Influenza Situation. Church Services to be Held Sunday. Public Schools and Library Open Monday.

The new cases of influenza and pneumonia which have been reported to Mr. Stacey each day dropped to seven cases on Wednesday. During the past week there has been a steady improvement in the seriousness and in the number of cases, so that it has been decided by the Board of Health that all public gathering places may be opened beginning at midnight Wednesday. This time was set in order to relieve the strained conditions which every one has been feeling under these abnormal times, and to allow people to have some form of amusement in this town. The Colonial Theatre opened yesterday.

The churches will all be open Sunday and their usual services will be held at the regular hours.

Mr. Sanborn, superintendent of the public schools, advises the Townsman this morning that public schools will all begin next week. The children of fam-

MILITARY TRAINING AT P.A.

Under Lieut. Wyatt Boys "Carry On" to Make Themselves Physically Hard and Fit.

When one used to watch the cadets drill at Westpoint, one often was inclined to feel that here was something inspiring and worth while but, at the same time, rather spectacular and apart from the commonplace, work-a-day world. Just as one is inclined to believe that those who are performing hilariously on the stage for the purpose of entertainment, are themselves deriving an equal amount of recreation with no real idea of business, early hours, humdrum routine and other elements of life-as-it-is, so was one inclined to regard similarly those finished and perfect drills. One had the idea that this military training was a great big game

KILLING THE INFLUENZA

Outdoor Treatment Applied at Military Camp in Lawrence. Andover Soldiers on Guard Duty at Emery Hill Base Hospital.

Unless one has ever had the experience of being in a large out-of-door hospital he can have no conception of the enormous problems which have been so wonderfully met and worked out by the heads of the Emery Hill Base Hospital in Lawrence.

Andover is particularly interested this week in the military end of the work because her Company H is serving there for ten days, having left last Friday at the order from Colonel Cox of Lawrence. So far Andover has not found it necessary to use a ward in the hospital for her patients, but one will be at her disposal should any need arise.

Certainly no place could be more beautifully located or better equipped and organized to take care of the sick, and the comparatively few recent deaths prove that everything possible is being done by the administrative head, Major Charles E. Durant, by the medical supervisor, Lieutenant Mellen, by the head nurse, Mrs. Anna M. Staebler, by the local branch of the Red Cross under Mrs. Paul Clay, by the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., and by all the many other doctors, volunteers, orderlies, and other helpers who have so generously and so untiringly served there.

Out of a most chaotic condition, order, military discipline, excellent sanitation and every necessary comfort for the sick have been brought about. The tents for the patients are arranged in "streets", as they are called, with a headquarters for the nurses at either end of each street, as well as several houses from which their supplies are obtained. In one of these houses is the most perfect system of sterilizing the masks that is known at the present day. The mask is thrown from the outside of the house through a slit in the wall. It lands in a large kettle of boiling water, then it travels through two more boiling processes until it reaches an electrically heated oven in which it dries in a short time and is then ready for use again. The importance of changing the mask after two hours' time and the great care which must be employed by the nurses is realized in this easy, perfect sterilizing system. From the outside of this same house, nurses may get piping-hot

LIBERTY LOAN BIG SUCCESS

Quota Oversubscribed to Nearly a Million. More Purchasers of Bonds Than Ever Before

Nearly one million dollars is the sum of money raised by Andover in the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign which was completed last Saturday night. The exact figures Friday morning are $936,450, and this represents 2832 subscribers, but every day more returns keep coming in so that the exact quota reached will not be known for several days.

Quite a few persons who subscribed to the loan outside of Andover and who wished the credit to go toward our quota have turned in their subscriptions, but, of course, there are many who will neglect to do this and so it is not possible to get the exact figures of Andover's subscribers. Nevertheless, this number which we have, shows that one out of a little more than every three citizens of the town, whose population is between seven and eight thousand, has subscribed to this loan. This is a far better percentage than we have had in any former loan drives and Mr. Flagg, the chairman, says that in every way this loan campaign has been far more successful than any past one. The inflow of subscriptions has been steady, with no great pauses and advances, and the value of owning the bonds is so well known now to everyone that there has not been such difficulty in persuading persons to buy.

An appreciation of the work of the Women's Committee under Mrs. Sawyer is seen in a letter received from Mrs. Robert T. Babson, chairman for Essex county of the Women's Liberty Loan Committee. She says in regard to the work of the committee in Andover: "I cannot begin to tell you how gratified I feel at your splendid report—both in the very fine money report and in the equally valuable recital of the spirit of cooperation which existed between your committee and the men's committee.

"I am sure you must all feel rewarded

THE STORE OF RELIABILITY
PRICE
You can always find a vast difference in price in various stores and the term "Bargain" is more than a myth; for today, more than ever, this can be proven. For instance, a man that was in position to buy clothing in large quantities a year ago, can certainly sell cheaper than the fellow that has only bought from "hand to mouth".
When it was positively ascertained that style would be limited to a few models for the duration of the war, we felt safe to place our War Order for men's clothing and bought to the limit, only the best fabrics at a price 50% less than today's market price.
That is the Reason
Why today we can still sell men's suits for $10, $12, $15
And Men's Overcoats for $15, $18, $20
While the cheapest thing in a suit or o'coat on the street is 20% higher.

AT THE THEATRES

COPLEY

The second week of "The Chinese Puzzle" begins at the Copley Theatre Monday evening. This play, which during the past three months has proved a sensation in London, bids fair to repeat its success here in Boston.

An Oriental atmosphere is developed throughout the play in the midst of its English surroundings. The first three acts take place at a country estate, and the fourth and last act in the rooms of the Marquis Chi Lung in London. The Marquis is a striking figure, and he is acted by Henry Jewett, who returns to the stage after an absence of several years, with no little skill and artistic insight that adds to the dramatic force of the play. The other characters in the cast, the entire production being under Mr. Jewett's personal direction, are H. Conway Wingfield, Fred W. Permain, E. E. Clive, Noel Leslie, Montague Weston, Leonard Craske, Nicholas Joy, William Podmore, Owen T. Hewitt, Jessamine Newcombe, Viola Roach, Estelle Thebaud, Mercedes Desmore and Phyllis Relph.

The best seats in the orchestra at the Copley are now $1.00, each, with other good seats on sale at 25 cents, 50 cents and 75 cents.

HOLLIS STREET

Margaret Anglin has brought to the Hollis Street theatre an attractive and delightful by-product of the war, a polite whimsicality rating as comedy and wearing the little "Billeted",, the co-work of Miss F. Tennyson Jesse and H. M. Harwood.

It is English in authorship, scene and story, largely English in the supporting performance, and splendidly English as a picture of the finely complacent way in which those allies of ours take life as it comes in troublous times. Though not a play of shot and shell, nor of any of war's alarms, it is as much a play of the war and of the moment as if it were a staging of the defense of Amiens. But it is placed back where the laughter is, and there it flourishes as a bright, amusing and stimulating comedy, a little flimsy, perhaps, but the more delightful for being so. It is, too, one of those things which Miss Anglin does surpassing well; here she is at her comedic best, making her every moment on the stage an opportunity and speeding time along with every resource of the fine talent of the practiced comedienne.

Miss Anglin's supporting company is one of the best comedy organizations seen in Boston in a long time. The principals include Sally Williams, Langdon Bruce, Harry Barfoot, Phyllis Birkett, Myra Burrington, Ralph Kemmett and Fred Eric. The engagement is for two weeks only and will terminate on November second, with the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Mail orders for seats will receive prompt and careful attention.

SECRETARY BAKER'S NEWS

In New York Times He Tells of Our Army in France

In the New York Times for last Sunday was a most interesting account of some of the pictures of war given by Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker. He is just back from a second trip to the battlefront, and he says that the history of this war can never be written adequately, because no man can comprehend or give in written words the tremendous scope and diversity of what is going on. There is not space enough to quote very much of his glowing account, but a few passages have been chosen to show that Americans have cause to be proud of their country,—her efficiency, the cleanness of her soldiers, and their excellent health.

"What was the most significant thing you saw on your trip?" he was asked.

"Our army," was the quick answer. "Of course," Secretary Baker continued, "the purpose of an army is to fight successfully, and the first inquiry is as to the fighting machine. To this, the answer is that our army is superbly led, with a body of officers trained rightly in specialized schools. Rigid efficiency tests are used and there is a universal spirit in France, among our forces, in favor of the rule that efficiency shall be the basis for all promotions. The men themselves are drilled and instructed to the highest degree to discharge their duties—and the army is a fighting army and a winning army.

"The next question as to an army is as to the system of supply—whether it is adequate. The entire supply arrangement of our army from the ports to the front-line trenches is a transplanted piece of American efficiency at its highest expression. The supplies move forward to the soldier with that precision attained by one of our modern industrial corporations.

"The next thing one asks about is as to the health of an army. Both the mortality and the sick rate of the American Expeditionary Force are the lowest ever known. I am not speaking of casualties. They vary with the sort of actions in which men are engaged, but the health record which rests on sanitation and care—and which maintains the health of an army by safeguarding the health of the individual—is not only the best we have ever had, but the best anybody has ever had.

"Our men have learned to take care of themselves, to adapt themeslves to every sort of condition, to live healthy, normal, vigorous lives, with wholesome restraints, to keep themselves in the pink of condition for their job. Their smooth-shaven faces contrast with the French soldiers, many of whom have beards, and with the English, many of whom have mustaches.

"Our soldiers have woven themselves deeply into the lives of the French people. When they have any time off they aid the civil population of the town and country, in some way. I saw them cording up wood for women, digging potatoes, gathering fruit in orchards. This they do rather than loaf around. The children say, 'Why, the Americans are so clean! They wash all over every day and clean their teeth after every meal.' Our boys carry sweets, and this keeps the children hanging around them. I often saw one of our soldiers with a French child on his knee, he feeding her candy and she teaching him new French words.

"The last question about an army is as to the morals and the morale. The answer of the American Expeditionary Force to this is that this great body of American boys, strong-limbed, healthy, and wholesome, are living in France like the house guests of trusting friends. There is almost no occasion for discipline among them. They have made friends with their associates, the troops of the allied nations, and, as I pointed out, among the civilian pooulation also.

"The whole relation between our troops and the British, French, and Italian troops is one of enthusiastic comradeship. In the matter of morale, our boys know what they are fighting for, and they brave every peril and encounter every hardship with the smiling enthusiasm that shows their invincible spirit."

A Business Note

I can see no common sense in expecting Germany to help reconstruct wasted Belgium and French towns, and boycotting all her efforts to get cash to do it.

I, for a simple spinster who have studied in old law records the foolishness of the old way of shutting a debtor in jail and letting his estate and his family perish, believe that the quicker Germany gets a job and wages we can trustee in some international fashion, the quicker she will regain her lost self-respect and attain true repentance and begin regeneration, her only hope.

C. H. A.

Saturday's Transcript had a note of Kaiser Wilhelm's yacht-race trophy presented in 1905 to the schooner Atlantic and called a gold cup. But last year, sold to the highest bidder and valued at $5000, melted down it was found to be gilded pewter and worth $40.

W. R. Thayer, the writer of the article, compares the gift to the braggart character of its donor and dubs him the "Pewter Napoleon". He explains that Napoleon was a self-taught military leader, while Wilhelm, pampered by lackeys, has kept himself unscathed through the terrible sacrifice of his own unhappy people as well as his opponents. He calls "Pewter the Great" a coward and has said about the most sarcastic things yet to this butt of the ages.

It was tightening of the American belt that made this hit possible. The game is won if we keep it up.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

METHUEN

Several local men were on Monday's Canadian casualty list. H. Billington and E. Robertshaw are reported as wounded. W. Birtles, Methuen, has been previously reported as wounded. E. Launsby, has been previously reported as killed.

The Methuen Board of Health was fortunate in being able to secure the services of Miss Eliza J. Swilt, former matron of the Lawrence children's home, as matron of the temporary children's home here. This home opened on Monday.

Word was received Saturday of the death of Richard Kinkead, a former resident of this town, in Barre, Vt., where he had been for several months. He is survived by his wife. For a number of years they had lived on Riverdale street, in the Pleasant Valley district where they owned a home.

The registrars of voters met at the city hall Monday evening and fixed Saturday, Nov. 9 and Saturday, Nov. 16, as dates for revising and correcting the check lists prior to the city primaries and the city election. All of the present ward councilmen are to be candidates for the same positions again and are now busy circulating nomination papers.

The board of health warns the public against throwing empty meat or fish cans or garbage of any kind in back yards, streets or any public place and directs that all refuse be placed in barrels or cans so the department teams can take it away when they call. This order is absolutely necessary and must be obeyed to protect the health of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Matthieson of 16 Clayton avenue were elected superintendent and matron of the Methuen city farm to succeed William Hooton and wife who will take up their duties at the Andover town farm. Mr. and Mrs. Matthieson are the parents of Corporal August Matthieson, a member of Battery C, 102nd Field Artillery, who was killed in action in France, July 21. There are three other members in the family.

Since the Lawrence base hospital has been established a large number of cases have been sent to the Methuen ward. The ward is finely located and for the most part the nurses and assistants are all from Methuen and are doing excellent work there in fighting the disease. Methuen has been assigned one street in the hospital and has accommodations for about 32 cases and more can be accommodated if conditions demand it. Since the Methuen ward was established 23 Methuen cases have been discharged as cured. There has been a large number of patients in the Methuen ward and so far there has been only one death.

The death of Hon. Edwin J. Castle, 56 Lowell street, came as a shock to his many friends. For more than 40 years he had been a business man of high standing in this city, having conducted a drug store for that period and he also was proprietor of a grocery store for about 10 years. In 1902 and 1903 he represented the Methuen and Wards one and two, Lawrence district, in the state legislature, and the following year he was elected senator, representing the district which includes Lawrence, Methuen, Andover and North Andover and in both of these branches served on important committees. Mr. Castle was born in Pittsburg, Pa., April 15, 1853, and was educated in the public schools of that city, but came to Methuen when quite young and established himself in the drug business with the late Thomas O. Stevens, under the firm name of Castle & Stevens. He was graduated from Harvard Veterinary institute and since about 1890 had practiced in Methuen as a veterinary surgeon. He had been repeatedly appointed cattle inspector and slaughtering inspector, positions which he held at the time of his death. Upon the resignation of City Treasurer David D. Woodbury this year, who entered the service of the Red Cross, Mr. Castle was elected to the position but after giving it careful consideration he declined to accept it, giving as his reason for it the feeble condition of his health. Mr. Castle was married November 1, 1894, to Mrs. Ella G. Bailey, formerly Miss Haseltine, who died some years later. He is survived by three children: Miss Mary, who lived at home, and Allen, who is employed in Lowell, and William. A sister, Miss Louise Castle, also lived with him. He was a member of Hope lodge, No. 31, I. O. O. F., a member of John Hancock lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Spicket Falls lodge, A. O. U. W., Methuen council, R. A., and of the Methuen club

Permissible Advance in Coffee Price

The United States Food Administration announced October 1 that while it was opposed to a general advance in the price of roasted coffee to the consumer, it would permit, where necessary, an advance on bulk roasted coffee sufficient to insure roasters a profit in cents per pound equal to their pre-war profits.

It is assumed that an advance on package coffee is not warranted, owing to the elimination of expensive packages and consequent saving on this item.

Full statements, satisfactory to the Food Administration, will be required, showing that any advance on bulk roasted coffee does not exceed the pre-war profit by the roaster, and that the advance is therefore warranted in each particular case.

LAWRENCE

A regular monthly meeting of the members of Company I., of the Massachusetts State Guard was held in the armory Monday night with Captain Peter F. Graham as chairman.

Jack Hartnett, a mechanic in Company B, 101st Infantry, captured unarmed six Germans, according to a letter written by John A. Cronin. He fooled them by putting his hand in his hip pocket and scaring the Boches.

Friends of Joseph P. O'Brien, who had seen him many times at his cigar counter at Forrest's Drug Store, were sorry to hear of his death last week at the Lawrence General Hospital. He died of pneumonia. He was twenty-eight years old.

Among nine enlisted men of the navy who volunteered to be inoculated for influenza to enable the medical doctors to learn specific facts regarding the disease, and have been commended by Secretary Daniels, is Fireman Frank J. Hogan of Lawrence.

Work on remodeling the Reid & Hughes Co.'s store, which has been suspended because of the carpenters' strike, was resumed Monday morning. All contracts held by E. A. Peabody & Son have been assumed by Reid & Hughes Co., which will be in charge of the work from now on.

Mechanic Michael Kennedy of 2 Bailey street, has been cited for marked gallantry during the advance of the 26th Division against the enemy from July 18 to 25, 1918, in the second battle of the Marne. This citation was received August 31, by his brother, Joseph.

This city has been selected at the request of State Department Commander Timothy Kelly of Boston, to be the place of meeting for the Stephen J. Ryan camp, 47, Spanish War Veterans when they hold their annual convention of the Massachusetts branch on April 18 and 19, next year. Commander Peter F. Graham is chairman of the committee in charge.

The arraignment of Mrs. Bessie May Skeels, who was indicted last month for the murder of Miss Florence Gay of Andover, will be put over until the next session of the Superior Criminal Court. This arraignment was put off before because of adjournment due to influenza epidemic, to Monday of this week, so that this makes the second time the case has been put off.

Three Lawrence boys have been promoted in France by the command of General Pershing. First Lieutenants, William J. Blythe of 104th Infantry, and Arthur A. Hansen of Company F, 101st Infantry, have been made captains; the latter taking the place of Captain Leahy of this city, who was recently killed in action. Second Lieutenant, Charles Lanigan of Battery C, 102nd Field Artillery, has been promoted to First Lieutenant.

Rev. John Ullom, who has been a Y.M.C.A. worker in Franece for a year in hospital service, addressed his former parishioners at the Salem Street Primitive Methodist church last Sunday. He expects to return to France after November 18, in the capacity of business manager in this service. His talk was full of enthusiasm and he believes peace will not come "before the snow flies another winter after this."

The second payroll of the base hospital amounted to $3823.75. To the carpenters $1764.40, the lion's share, was paid; to laborers, $22.50; to caterers and waitresses, $493.50; to nurses, $1519.35; to Arthur Walker, listed as morgue man, $24. Last week's payroll amounted to $4870.85, with the carpenters getting $4357.95. Thus with a payroll dating October 3 to 19 inclusive, amounting to $8794.60, the carpenters have drawn $6122.35.

Employees of the Arlington Mills who were recently called out to do a tour of duty at the Emery Hill hospital as members of Company I., will receive the difference in pay from what they received as State Guardsmen and their regular pay in the mill, according to a notice received by the company commander from the mill officials. It is believed all the other mills and private individuals who employ State Guardsmen will do likeiwse.

Called in special session by Mayor Hurley the committee on non-war construction of the Committee on Public Safety, met Wednesday afternoon in city hall. Action by the committee to expedite work of construction on the new filter and the enabling of a decision from the committee by Wednesday led to the mayor's call. Many applications for building and alteration permits are being made to the committee. These were considered at the regular meeting of the committee Thursday afternoon.

Mayor Hurley was authorized by the City Council at their meeting Monday to draw up an agreement with the Pemberton Company for a lease of the land on Methuen street, where the portable school buildings now stand. The lease will cover a period of three years at the rate of $541 per annum, representing six per cent of the assessed valuation of the land. A communication was received from the Pemberton Company notifying the council that the present lease expired on July 31 last. The other matters were of a routine nature and were quickly disposed of.

MILITARY TRAINING AT P. A.

into which each boy entered for sport and amusement, and the work behind the scenes, which was responsible for the result, was dismissed as decidedly secondary. It is always hard to realize the individual actor of cadet, to realize the individual actor or cadet, the man who has entered into a life work with a serious purpose,—that he has experienced all kind of fatigue and even hardship to make himself the perfect unit of a perfect whole.

On Andover "Hill" there is being conducted on military training work, and here one has the opportunity to observe the kind of hard serious work which must go on behind the scenes.

Here, under Lieut. R. E. Wyatt, the boys are "carrying on". Mondays Wednesdays and Fridays they receive rigid stiff training which will make them physically strong, fit for any emergency, and ready to stand as a finished example of what military training will do for the American boy.

Although the new uniforms have not yet arrived, nor have they yet been organized into a regiment, they are working hard and with a spirit of real patriotism and earnestness that is evident to the most casual observer.

There are six companies, consisting of seventy cadets in each, with a competent permanent cadet officer at the head. These cadet officers, who have charge of the instructing were appointed by Lieut. Wyatt and have him for their superior officer. At present these officers are: Co. A, Cadet Major Tappan; Co. B, Capt. Dole; Co. C, Capt. Hewitt; Co. E, Capt. Whipple; Co. E, Capt. Bolton; Co. F, Capt. George Houk. The work of instructing each Company is supervised by the cadet officer, who appoints, each day, a different boy to drill in the various branches of military work. In this way every boy will get a chance to drill in every branch of work and, of course, each has a chance to show what he can do. No method could be fairer for allowing a boy to discover his own ability.

This year there is very little open work but the close order work which tends to concentrate on quickness, physical hardening, and military discipline is being used. Soon they will begin bayonet fighting, which is also very practical. The trench digging, bombing and gun firing are all elements of actual warfare and the idea is, that specializing in particular branches of service may come later. Now, the main thing is to get hardened and trained physically so that when the need arises the boy will be ready to enter and a helpful part of the U. S. Army.

This military work is included in the school curriculum. A boy who is 16 and over and who is physically fit must join a company, he will then not be required to take other athletic work. A boy on probation may not be a commissioned officer and, should any boy get on probation, he is obliged to resign his commission immediately. In this way the discipline is controlled as in the Army and a commission is a high honor which must be well guarded.

Lieut. Wyatt worked with Major Davy last year and has had experience along the lines of military training work. Under his direction the Phillips Academy Company is certain to turn out boys who in every way will bring credit to the school and to their country.

Leave Town for Service

Several boys left town this week to go in training in service at various camps. On Monday Frank G. McCarty, Arthur J. Leary and Harold B. Stark went to Fort Williams in Portland, Me.; Tuesday, Joseph Beaulieu and Herman J. Hilton left for Fort Warren and Wednesday Robert J. Winters left to report at New Bedford.

Cited for Bravery

An Andover boy who has been cited for bravery on several occassions recently is Private John C. Ross of Co. L., 104th Inf. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross of Essex street, and was born in Scotland nineteen years ago. The family came to Andover when he was five years old so that he received his education in the public schools here and is a wellknown member of the community. At the time of his enlistment a year ago he was employed at the Smith & Dove Mfg. Co.

His citation from Maj. Gen. Edwards is as follows:—

Headquarters of 26th Division
American Expeditionary Force
France, August 3, 1918

General Orders,
No. 74. Extract

1. The Division Commander takes pleasure in citing in orders the following named officers and men who have shown marked gallantry and meritorious service in the capture of Torcy, Belleau, Givny, Boaresches Woods, Rochel Woods, Hill 190, overlooking Chateau Thierry, Etrepilly, Bezuet, Epeids, Frugny, and La Fere Woods to the Jaulgonne, Fere-on-Tasdenois Road, during the advance of this Division against the enemy from July 18 to the 25th, 1918 in the second battle of the Marne.

Private John C. Ross, Company L, 104th Infantry.

NEWS OF ANDOVER SUBURBS

BALLARDVALE

The Ballardvale Ice Company is planing to build a large icehouse.

Miss Melissa McKean has returned from a short visit with friends in Maine.

There was no midweek service in the churches this week but it is hoped it may be resumed next week.

Miss Mary McAvoy, who has been confined to her home by illness, is able to return to her work in Lawrence.

Mr. and Mrs. McFaddon and daughters, Marion and Alice, spent Sunday with their cousin, Mrs. Helena McAvoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wilkinson of Reading were the guests Saturday of the former's brother, David Wilkinson, Andover street.

Private John H. Platt of the Headquarters Company at Camp Devens, has returned after a five day ' furlough spent at his home in town.

Mrs. Martha Dearborn and Mrs. William S. Tomlinson and sons, Kenneth and Dearborn, have returned to their home in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Fuller and Masters Lawrence and Allen Fuller of Everett were the guests Saturday of Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Fuller.

The bells were rung in the local churches Sunday forenoon at 11 o'clock for an hour of devotion in the homes of the people. It is hoped everyone entered into the spirit of the worship.

Payments on the Second and Third Liberty Loans were again resumed at the local branch library on Tuesday evening. On account of the influenza the bank representative did not come but will now be present at the regular time.

While there have been a number of new cases of influenza in the town, it continues to be held in check and it is generally believed by the authorities that the worst stages of the epidemic are past, but they still urge the people to use every means to avoid the dread disease.

Ralph Gilman Carpenter and Miss Laura Annie Davison, both popular young people of Wakefield, were married at the Congregational parsonage Sunday morning by Rev. Augustus Fuller. They were unattended. The double-ring service was used. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will make their home in Wakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton Jones returned Monday to their home at Caney Creek Community Center, Kentucky, after a visit with the latter's mother, Mrs. C. C. Stickney, Woburn street. Mrs. Jones is planning for another Christmas tree for the children of Caney Creek mountains. Those who wish to contribute to this worthy object should address Mrs. J. H. Jones, Tippi Pass, Wayland, Kentucky.

Christ Church Notes

The Church School will reopen on November 3, at 12 o'clock, following the opening of the public schools.

Bishop Lawrence is planning to come for Confirmation about the first of December. Classes in preparation will be held on Tuesday in the rector's study, off the church, at 4 and 8 p.m.

Notices of the meetings of the various Guilds may be expected at the Sunday services. Especially important now will be the notice for the Woman's Guild, for we are expecting the meeting of the Northeastern Section of the Woman's Auxiliary in Christ church on Thursday, November 14, when Rev. Dr. Mann of Trinity church, Boston, will be the preacher.

The church has been open during the epidemic for private prayer, and people have availed themselves of this special purpose as they have walked in to kneel for a moment in the quiet. Without public services, it has yet borne witness.

South Church Notes

The meeting of the Men's Club on Friday evening will be the first opportunity for a large public gathering since the influenza ban was placed upon us.

Both men and women are cordially invited to hear Harry A. Maxwell, Y.M.C.A. secretary, of Malden. who has returned recently from the war and who will speak to us on the topic, "With the First Million in France." The men of the Free church and of the Baptist church Men's Clubs are cordially invited. The singing of popular songs will make a part of the program.

The first of the South church stars to be turned to gold is that of our lamented Captain Phillips G. Morrison, whose death from influenza at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, has put an end to the brilliant career of a young engineer.

The death of G. Chester Spalding from the dread epidemic has removed another highly esteemed young man of the South church. His advancement in the druggist's profession was moving rapidly when the fatal blow came.

Owing to the continued prevalence of the epidemic in Lowell, it has been deemed necessary to postpone the meeting of the Andover Association of Congregational Churches from Tuesday, the 29th of October, for two weeks, to Tuesday, the 12th of November, when it will be held in the Highland Congregational church on Westford street.

Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Sewing department of the Women's Union will gather in the vestry for a starting of the year's work and a full attendance is desired.

Mrs. Joseph Melanson, who also lived for years in the Bailey district, died in Lowell of pneumonia following an attack of influenza, leaving her husband and five children, the youngest only one year old.

He Got Real "Service"

He was the sassiest recruit in a colored regiment. He had been a waiter in a New York hotel and had repeatedly bragged that the very first chance that he got he would "jes' nat'lly show 'em how".

When his regiment reached the front-line trenches the former waiter promptly jumped on the fire-step and, peering in the direction of the German line, he beckoned the enemy toward him. Then he shouted:

"Come on heah, you Bush Germans! Come, show us what you-all have! We done come a long distance to see what you-all got! Come on with everything you got! Come on with your big Berthas an' everything else."

He got only thus far when a shell landed in front of the trench, a short distance from where the former waiter was challenging the whole German army. The explosion hurled the challenger several feet and partially covered him with earth. His comrades looked to see what had become of him. They watched him slowly rise to his feet and heard him ejaculate as with a grin he started flicking the dust off his uniform and his hands: "Well, you certainly does get service here."—Current Events

More About Mr. Brown

No wonder the wife of our old-time Free Church parson was delicate. I have just learned of another tenement they occupied at one time. George T. Abbott recalls when a boy their residence in the upper rooms of his present home, so these can be added to the Trulan house, the Locke house and maybe more, before we come back to the solid comfort that has fallen to the lot of our beloved Mr. Wilson of the old Andover blood from Wilson's Corner. Mary T. Abbott will have the joy of seeing the old home cared for in its latter-day usefulness. Long may it be the headquarters of the ghosts of those ancient line at rest here from all their trials, alike the last Abbott and the last Wilson we saved. Another tradition has failed also. I take all that is passed to me with avidity of that sort of memory, and in case of error have friendly neighbors who are ready to place the right story. Mr. Brown's second wife was the daughter of Prof. Emerson, who was here in the Seminary. Rev. Ralph Emerson, D.D., 1829 to 1853, from Hollis, N. H., Yale College 1811, died at seventy-six in Rockford, Illinois, and left six sons and three daughters. Charlotte (Emerson) Brown at the time of her marriage was a teacher in Rockford Seminary, by Miss Bailey's report. So here we are, records versus tradition.

ABBOTT VILLAGE

Mrs. Alex M. Ness is ill at her home on Red Spring road.

George and William Bateson of Essex street visited in Boston Thursday.

Alexina McNabb is confined to her home on Red Spring road with influenza.

Harry Schofield of Melrose spent a few days last week with his father on Cuba street.

Mrs. Timothy McCarthy of Red Spring road visited her mother, Mrs. Cunio, in Woburn, last week.

While working in Boston last week Joseph Hughes of Brechin Terrace, fell from a ladder and sprained his wrist.

Robert Hackney of Red Spring road has returned to his work for the Carlisle Cord Tire Company after a brief illness.

Frank Coleman of South Lawrence, painter for the Smith & Dove Co., succumbed to an attack of influenza Wednesday.

Private John Winters of Camp Upton, Yaphank, N. Y., spent a few days' furlough at the family home on Brechin Terrace this week.

Soccer Game

A large number of soccer enthusiasts from Andover will see the Nation Cup Contest at the Lawrence Street grounds, Methuen, between the Merrimack Valley eleven and the Boston Rovers team. Soccer has been little seen hereabouts since the war gardens took the playing fields and the war took the players. An eleven has been made up from the various teams of this district to play under the name of Merrimack Valley Football Club; this is conducted by the officials of the District League.

The local lineup:—Fred Hatton or J. Deyermond, goal; Joe Higginbotham, Peter Clark or George Clark, backs; Albert Eaton, James Holt, William Kelley, halfbacks; Burne Hill, Peter Cairnie, Fred Bartlett, Harold Morley or James Ramsey, Albert Eaton.

The Boston team includes picked men from clubs in that district and has Norris, G orge Collins, Geddes, Nelson, Meldrum, Fairweather, Davidson, Haveron, McLeish, Reede and Tipping, the last four from the Trimo crack eleven.

This will give soccer followers another chance to see their favorite game and it should be a good one. The hour, 3.30, will allow plenty of time for the Andover people to get there.

Skip Stop on Outlying Lines

The Bay State announces that following the recommendations of the United States Fuel Administration, passenger stops on its lines in the rural districts will be re-arranged with a view to reducing their number. This is in line with the changes made in the city districts earlier in the year and is part of the nation-wide movement backed by the Fuel Administration to reduce street car stops in order to save fuel. It is a well known fact that each additional stop takes extra coal and tremendous savings are being made by the lessening of their number.

The reduction in stops also helps to improve the service as it makes quicker trips possible and assists in keeping the cars on time, especially in the rush hours when passengers are anxious to get to their work or homes promptly.

In all cases cards will be attached to the poles which are discontinued as stopping places so that passengers formerly using them will be amply notified.

The man, woman or child who is not a part of the war, in the face of the sacrifices of our boys over there, has no right to enjoy the sacred privileges of America!—no right to call himself an American! He is an alien, if not in name, at least in spirit.

The money which you invest in War-Savings Stamps buys food and supplies for our boys over there, as well as ammunition. The money that you put into War-Savings Stamps represents that much labor, food and supplies, not used by us, but instead turned over to the Army and Navy. ### This Year It Will Be a Literal "People's Choice"

The good sense of the Republican party has led to a complete abandonment of public activities in connection with the pending campaign here in Massachusetts. Many of us will regret to see the state convention and the "night before" given up, but there are few people in the Commonwealth who won't approve the wisdom thus displayed by those in control.

As for what may be lost to the party itself through this action there may be some question. The writer believes that the public doesn't want to hear a thing about politics, and is inclined to think if some individuals could be suppressed as successfully as the epidemic has suppressed public gatherings, the cause of party politics would be profited thereby. These are no times for political harryings, for there are altogether too many other and more serious things commanding attention. They are the times, however, for political consideration, and the voter who does not respond to his conscience and the country's needs when the time comes for casting ballots in November will be a slacker of the worst type.

We don't believe that it is necessary to tell the voters this year what is needed. Speaker Cox has well expressed it when he says "no political party has a monopoly on patriotism", and he might have gone further and said no political candidate has a monopoly on patriotism. It doesn't make a bit of difference in winning the war who is elected to office, as far as party politics is concerned, for there isn't one single man who doesn't feel that the war must be won and won on the field of battle and not through political entanglements and partisan discussion. It will, however, make a tremendous difference to this country what policies dominate the government after the war and there is where the Republicans have a big duty to perform. Immigration, tariff legislation, control, opportunity and adjustment of labor, in all these and many others the Republican party has been the great balancing force in the United States for many years. All this makes the demand for a Republican Congress in both branches, and there is the big job next month.

A job only a little less important has to do with the state itself, where wise leadership is needed as almost never before, and where trained men must be put at the head of things, if results that only trained men can produce are to be assured.

The state puts its best foot forward in planning for these situations both nationally and locally. It is doubtful if there was ever in the history of the country a team of representatives in the upper branch of Congress to compare with Senator Lodge, the orator, the statesman, the far-seeing diplomat, and Senator Weeks, the clear-thinking, upstanding American business man. One complements the other, and it would be difficult to say which would be the greater loss to the nation in these times when Massachusetts leadership counts as it should count. The public isn't going to discuss ancient history or modern prophecy, but is going to consider Senator Weeks and the work that he is doing at the present time in his present job. He need have no fear to have all the other things discussed, for it is doubtful if a cleaner life, personally, politically, and in a business way has even been up to the people for approval, but when there is added to that, a service in statecraft where his vision has been recognized as the beacon to call others to follow, there can be no doubt of the response, which Massachusetts will make to the opportunity given her to continue Senator Weeks in his present high place.

Calvin Coolidge is somewhat of an enigma in politics to those who do not understand the man. The average fellow who has been in the habit of going to a political gathering, finds it difficult to understand the cool, calm, unruffled temperament controlling the Lieutenant Governor, but those who know him better look at results and forget all else.

They recall that as the mayor of a leading city in the state, he so administered affairs that he entirely wiped out its debt, gave it many new improvements, adjusted its taxes and expenses and municipal problems in a way to make Northampton remember for all time the direction of Mayor Coolidge. They know that in the Legislature he became a leader unconsciously, never making an effort to direct things but always saying the word which seemed to fit into the adjustment of the situation in hand. It was natural he should become president of the Senate, and it is doubtful if any man who has held that office went into it with less obligation to any of the factors that have frequently named Senate presidents than did he.

The stranger who looked on had not the least idea that he would defeat his brilliant opponent when there came a contest for Lieutenant Governor; the men who knew Coolidge were sure that he would, and of course he did.

The stranger cannot in the least comprehend why he gets more votes than most of those who run on the ticket with him, but those who know him are sure that he will and after he does, can't explain it any more than could the stranger.

Isn't it the answer, after all, that Calvin Coolidge always has his feet on the ground, says what he means, and means what he says, and while he doesn't say much, he says enough to let one know where he stands, and that he stands for the worth-while things which have for so long a time dominated Massachusetts public life and are to be exalted more than usually when he becomes Governor.

He has high ideals, a cold exterior and a warm heart, a deep reverence for the institutions of government, a love of justice, a loyalty to his country, a devotion to his state, to his home, and to his friends; it is these which make of him an ideal candidate of any party for any high office.

It is because of Weeks, Coolidge, and Cox, the congressman from our district, and a lot more good men who are making up the Republican ticket, that the party feels it may with confidence abandon any kind of a public meeting, knowing that the voters are pretty sure to do the right thing when left to their own judgment.

Editorial Cinders

Only three or four weeks ago a familiar face greeted the writer on the street in the person of Robert Rudd Whiting, and within the last ten days notices of his death have been published in New York and Boston papers. We had meant to say a word at the time of his last visit in Andover, recalling the pleasant acquaintance with this young man when a boy at Phillips, and the satisfaction felt over the success in lines which promised so well at that time. How well we recall the "Little Sign of the Knocker" which he published as a personal effort, with illustrations, during his Phillips days; his bright, clever stories; his keen mind applied to all literary effort, which naturally led him to a later career of much brilliancy in the literary fields of New York! These Phillips boys become real Andover boys to many of us, and here is a case of one whose success, cut off thus early in life, is prized by many outside of the immediate circle who were more closely connected with it.

We have a story this week of the influenza camp in Lawrence that cannot fail to be interesting, not only because of the general project itself but of the close relationship which Andover has to it through the work of many of the Andover boys in the State Guard duty there. There is considerable evidence that the Spanish influenza and the various things associated with that trouble yield to outdoor treatment pretty satisfactorily. This again emphasizes the need in Andover for better facilities for meeting such situations.

Speaking of the boys of Andover on State Guard duty in Lawrence, it isn't going to be easy to reconcile a number of the very serious inconsistencies connected with the pay of the men who did this loyal service. In the papers in Lawrence we have seen statements made of the enormous profiteering in constructing the camp. It is a pretty tough jolt when a skilled mechanic leaves his job and "serves" for the government seven days with little leeway for about a ten-dollar bill, while his associate in daily life, also a skilled mechanic, works no longer hours than he does, and draws over $200 for the same "tour of duty". Verily there are many forms of "patriotism" and not all are associated with either waving the flag or doing business.

Page 7 of today's Townsman lets you see one of the big factors in Massachusetts life of today through the eyes of an Andover man who not only can see things clearly but who can write of them so that others can see. Read Mr. O'Connell's estimate of the man who is shooing away half of your sugar.

Doesn't Andover do it right though! It doesn't make much matter what it is, she always goes across, and so no one doubted that her big quota of $818,000 for the Fourth Liberty Loan would surely be raised. But who could have thought it would be passed by so much as to reach almost a million dollars?

Another gold circle star has been added to our service flag for Corporal John A. Ross of Company L, 102nd Infantry. He was cited for bravery in action.

H. G. TYER ENTERS SERVICE

Henry G. Tyer of Morton street, son of Mrs. H. H. Tyer, left Tuesday for Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky., where he is entered as a candidate for a commission in Field Artillery service.

Mr. Tyer is well known in Andover through the various activities with which he has always been associated. Over a year ago he was made president of the Tyer Rubber Company. For several years he has been to the southern countries in the interests of this concern, having been in the business since his graduation from Harvard College in 1907.

He was Top Sergeant in Company H, 16th Regiment of the Massachusetts State Guard, and his work in that capacity has given him experience for this new military service.

Mr. Tyer was also prominent in the Boy Scout work of Andover. As their scoutmaster he has been influential in keeping up the enthusiasm and interest of this splendid work for young boys and they will miss him very much.

On Monday his associates in the Tyer Rubber Company presented him with a solid silver, fully jeweled wrist watch as an expression of their good wishes. He takes with him also the hopes for all kinds of success from his many other friends in Andover.

Notice for Andover Women

A National Survey of Nursing Resources is being made. At the request of the Secretary of War and the Surgeon-General of the Army the American Red Cross is undertaking through its chapters and branches during the month of October, a nation-wide survey or poll of all women who come under the following heads: Graduate Nurses, Pupil Nurses, Non-graduate Nurses, Practical Nurses, Trained Attendants, Midwives, and Those Who Have Taken Red Cross Courses. Will every woman in Andover who comes under any of these heads (except those who have taken First Aid courses in Andover, whose names I have, and unless they have already received a questionnaire from me) send her name and address at once to Mrs. H. M. Poynter, 21 Phillips St., Andover.

There is no obligation for service in sending in your name.

Dolls' Clothes Made and Sold

A dolls' sale was held last week by several enterprising little girls. They made the most of this unforeseen vacation by cutting out, knitting, and sewing on dolls' clothes, which they sold for the benefit of the Red Cross. Little dresses, hats, raincoats, and sweaters, with tam o' shanter to match, all sold at a very small price, but $5.00 is the sum of money realized that has been turned over to the Red Cross. The girls who held the sale were Martha E. Buttrick, Jean H. Donald, Jemima Walker and Marion H. Wilkinson.

WEDDINGS

Double Wedding

Last Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Cross on Punchard avenue, a double wedding was solemnized by Rev. F. R. Shipman, former pastor of the South church.

Miss Blanche Cross was married to Charles F. Holt of this town, formerly of Lawrence, and Miss Edith Cross to Thomas Badger of West Somvreille, also formerly of this town. The double-ring service was used. The wedding was simple and informal, the house beicg beautifully decorated with palms and autumn foliage, and the brides wearing crepe de chine dresses. Only immediate friends and relatives were present and to them was served a wedding supper.

Both couples are well known in Andover and were in school together, Miss Blanche Cross being a graduate of Punchard High School in the class of 1906.

Both couples are on a honeymoon trip in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Holt will live at 5 Punchard avenue in this town, while Mr. and Mrs. Badger will live on Clarendon avenue, West Somerville.

HAYES—SULLIVAN

The following notice has been received:—

"The marriage of Michael Sullivan, son of Mrs. Mary Sullivan of 49 Red Spring road, and Julia Hayes of Lawrence, took place Wednesday morning, October 16, at a nuptial mass in Farmington, Conn. The bride is a popular and well-known young lady of this town and of South Lawrence. The groom made his home in Andover all his life until last year when he accompanied Professor Keep to Farmington as his chauffeur. They received many useful and costly gifts from their many friends, who wish them good luck in their wedded life. They had a very small wedding on account of the epidemic, but the attendants were a bridesmaid, Mrs. Wagonback, sister of the bride, and a best man, Timothy Sullivan, brother of the groom.

"They left for a short honeymcon in New Jersey where they will visit the groom's brother, Stephen, at Camp Merritt. He is in the aviation service. From there they will go to Newport, R. I., to visit the groom's sister, Mrs. John Riley. They will be at home to friends at their newly furnished cottage at Farmington, Conn., after October 30."

BARRETT—DeLOREY

At St. Augustine's church, October 22, Timothy Francis Barrett, aged twenty-eight, was married to Miss Lena Frances DeLorey, by the Rev. John A. Nugent.

W. H. Lillard a Captain

W. Huston Lillard, who was for nine years principal Stearns's assistant, an instructor in the English Department, and football coach at Phillips Academy, has received a commission as captain in the Adjutant General's Department. Captain Lillard served for a time on the Mexican Border in 1916 as a lieutenant in Company L, 8th Massachusetts Infantry, and his promotion comes as no great surprise to his Andover friends who realize his ability and experience along the lines of military service.

Harvest Supper

The Harvest supper to be given by the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Free church will be held Friday evening, November 8. Supper will be served at 6.30. Price 35 cents.

Colonial Theatre Notice

On Tuesday, November 5, a special Government Picture "Fit to Fight" is to be shown to all the employees of the local mills, tickets distributed at mills by employers. In order to make it possible to exhibit said film the regular program on that day will commence at 7.45. Matinee at 2.15 as usual.

Lecture on the Ukraine at Abbot Academy

On Thursday evening, October 31, at 8 o'clock, a lecture will be given in Davis Hall, Abbot Academy, by Miss Elizabeth Hasnaovitz on "Life in Ukrania."

Miss Hasanovitz is a young Russian whose recent articles in the Atlantic entitled "One of Them" have attracted favorable notice. She is now a factory inspector in New York City.

In her lecture Miss Hasanovitz gives a short historical sketch of Ukrania, describes its home life and customs, and sings a few of the native songs.

Abbot Academy Notes

At Hall Exercises Saturday, October 19, Miss Kelsey gave a very interesting talk on the earlier days and growth of Abbot Academy.

The annual fall tennis tournament was completed Tuesday afternoon, October 22, with Edith Wright as winner of the individual cup.

At a cornhusking Wednesday afternoon, fifty Abbot girls were guests of O. P. Chase on Elm street. Elizabeth Armstrong's team won by six and one-half bushels over their opponents, who were captained by Grace Clement. One hundred and one and one-half bushels of corn were husked in about an hour's time.

FUEL COMMITTEE WARNING

More Wood Must be Burned and Less Coal Used

The Andouer Fuel Committee feels that the time has arrived when certain important features of the coal situation should be impressed upon everyone in Andover.

The original allotment of anthracite coal made to the town by the Fuel Administration the latter part of last Spring was not even sufficient to cover the orders the dealers then had on hand, without regard to the many additional tons that would be called for later in the year. This allotment the committee has finally succeeded in having increased so that it is hoped that it will be sufficient to cover all orders though it will be the closest kind of a fit.

But that is only a paper supply and is very uncertain whether it can ever be converted into coal. To date, in spite of the persistent efforts of the dealers and the committee to bring about a different result, the receipts of coal in Andover have been considerably below even the amount called for by the original allotment; and the committee does not feel that it can give any assurance that this condition will be materially bettered.

It, therefore, seems very possible that those who orders are over six tons so that they fall within the two thirds delivery class, may never be able to obtain the final third of their order. In addition there is a particularly great shortage in the stove and chestnut sizes so that persons who have limited their orders to these particular sizes are likely to experience still greater difficulty. The Fuel Administration makes no distinction between the various domestic sizes of anthracite and, therefore, even if the supplu of anthacite coal received in town is sufficient to cover all orders, it may well be that the dealers will find it impossible to provide for their stove and chestnut orders.

Under these circumstances the committee believes that everyone should consider with extreme care the following suggestions, applying them in so far as possible to his or her own individual ease:

1. Practice the strictest economy in the use of coal. This does not mean economizing to the point of bringing on ill health but a great deal can be done before that point is reached.

A person who is extravagant with the coal which he has received CANNOT expect ANY help from the committee if later on in the year his supply becomes exhausted. On the other hand the committee will do everything in its power to see that persons, who do their best to help meet the situation by saving coal and using wood and other substitutes, are not left without fuel in the winter months.

2. If your order calls for stove or chestnut coal notify your dealer at once that he may substitute broken, egg or pea coal, the sizes that are more available.

3. BURN WOOD. This can be done particularly advantageously at this time of year, before the weather gets cold enough to make a continuous fire necessary, and in the Spring. Also, Mr. Storrow, New England Fuel Administrator has made the following order as to substituting wood:

"Moreover, further deliveries in excess of six tons will not be authorized to any consumer who cannot establish to the satisfaction of his Local Fuel Committee that he has used wood as a hard coal substitute to an extent that is reasonable and consistent with the requirements of the situation that exists in his community."

There are a number of dealers ready to supply your wants and the Marland Mills, Smith & Dove Mfg. Co. and Tyer Rubber Co. have several hundred cords which they are prepared to sell at cost. If you have any difficulty in obtaining wood or in getting it delivered communicate with Mr. Lamont of this committee and he will help you, or better still cut some for yourself.

Surgical Dressings Notice

As the necessity for closed workrooms seems to be over, we shall be open next Wednesday and Thursday as usual. We are now told that we shall be called upon for increased effort in production, so that it is essential that we finish next week, if possible, the quota of Blue Seal Packets which is now nearly a month late. Tampon makers and all who can assemble and map the packets are especially urged to come.

Italy Makes Brig-General Churchill a Commander

Brigadier-General Marlborough Churchill of Andover has recently been made a Commander of the Crown of Italy. This honor was bestowed upon him by the king, Victor Emmanuel, as a reward for the great services he has rendered to the Allies.

During the war General Churchill has won great distinction, not only for himself and the country, but also indirectly for Phillips Academy. When the war broke out he was serving as a major on General Pershing's staff. He rose rapidly to Lieutenant Colonel, then to Colonel, and during the summer to Brigadier-General. He returned to this country in the spring and is now in charge of the Inteiligence Department at Washington. Appreciation of his ability has always been given him by his own country, and it is most pleasing to Andover people to find him honored by countries abroad.

OBITUARIES

FATHER FOGARTY

On Friday afternoon, October 18, Rev. Daniel P. Fogarty, O.S.A., assistant pastor of St. Augustine's church, died after a brief illness. He had been ministering so cheerfully and so untiringly to the sick of his parish that illness came to him; and his death, coming suddenly, caused a great shock and much sorrow to his many friends.

Doctor Conroy of this town and Doctor Bain of Lawrence were constantly with him, doing all in their power to save his life, but the illness, pneumonia, became too serious for recovery and death came at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

During the three years of his work in this parish Fr. Fogarty made a place for himself which will be difficult to fill. He was always kindly and genial, he loved the poor, sick and afflicted, and his earnestness and simplicity of life made him well-loved by all who knew him.

Rev. Fr. Fogarty was born in Kyle, Templemore, County Tipperary, Ireland, February, 1886, and was the son of Edward and Catherine Fogarty. After his elementary education in the schools there, he and his brother Thomas, who is now Fr. Fogarty, S. A., in North Troy, N. Y., came to America and attended Villanova College for four years. He was admitted as a novice into the Augustinian order and at the end of the prescribed year he was professed.

In the summer of 1908 he left for Rome, where he pursued his theological studies and in the year 1913 was ordained to the holy priesthood in the Eternal City. On his return to this country he was assigned as a professor at Villanova, where he remained for one year. Next he was transferred to St. Augustine's, Andover, where he labored most zealously for over three years when he was assigned to Our Mother of Good Counsel church at Bryn Mawr, Pa.

At the Quadrennial Chapter held in June last Rev. J. A. Nugent, O.S.A., was assigned as rector of St. Augustine's. Knowing the great love Fr. Fogarty had for the parishioners of St. Augustine's, he requested that he be allowed to return to Andover, to the great delight and happiness of both priest and people.

Fr. Fogarty is survived by not only his parents who still reside in Tem-lemore County, Tipperary, Ireland, but also by a sister, Mary; and three brothers, Martin, John and James, all in Ireland; Rev. Thomas Fogarty, O.S.A.,; Jeremiah, a seminarian at St. Augustine's seminary, Toronto, Canada; Patrick, now at Cardiff, Wales, as a United States Naval Reserve; and Michael, also in the Naval Reserve at League Island, Philadelphia.

Funeral services were held Monday at 10 o'clock in the church. Low mass was celebrated by Rev. Thomas G. Fogarty, O.S.A. of North Troy, N. Y., brother of the deceased, and Rev. George S. Walker, O.S.A., of St. Mary's church, Lawrence, and Rev. Fr. George Scannell of St. Nicholas's church, New York, both classmates of the deceased at Rome, assisted. The services were very simple.

Rev. Fr. Michael Sullivan of St. Mary's church sang "Benedictus," "Jesus, Savious of My Soul," and "O Salutaris Hostia." Interment was in the Augustinian lot in St. Mary's cemetery, where commital services were read by Rev. Fr. Nicholas J. Vasey, provincial of the order. The bearers were John McDonald, Dr. Edward C. Conroy, Michael Gardner, Patrick Barrett, Peter Donovan and Patrick McNally.

The ushers at the church were John Harnedy, Frank McDonald, Charles Hurley, and Augustine Sullivan.

Within the sanctuary during the mass were Rev. Frs. Nicholas J. Vasey, provincial O.S.A., E. T. Dohan, Greenwich, N. Y.; James McDonald, Hoosic, Falls, N. Y.; Augustine McMahon, Cohasset; Frederick S. Riordan, pastor of St. Laurence's church; William Cotter, Watertown, N. Y.; Hugh Gallagher, Boston; Lieut. Patrick Gallagher, K. of C. Chaplain, N. Y.; George Scannell, New York; Alfred Valiquette, Mechanicsville, N. Y.; James T. O'Reilly, O'Reilly, George S. Loomis, Charles Medina, Michael Sullivan, John Hogan, William Fink, from St. Mary's church; P. J. Campbell and John T. McCloskey of St. Laurence's church, and Louis Tierney of the Holy Rosary church.

The absolution of the body was performed by Very Rev. Nicholas J. Vasey, O.S.A., of Villanova, Pa., provincial of the Augustinian order.

The body was removed to St. Augustine's church Sunday at 3 o'clock where it lay in state until the funeral services. The bearers removing the body into the church were Michael Stack, Charles Sorry, Thomas Lundergan, Martin Callahan, Patrick Hession, and Frank Mooney.

The divine office of the dead was read Sunday by Rev. Fr. James T. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Mary's church, Lawrence, assisted by Rev. Fr. Daniel Leonard, prior of St. Mary's, and Rev. Fr. Fred S. Riordan, pastor of St. Laurence's church.

As the body lay in state a guard of honor attended it until the time of the funeral services. The guard of honor consisted of Michael Stack, Charles Sorry, Thomas Lundergan, Patrick Brady, William Daley, Patrick English, William Hennessey, John Connelly and Frank McDonald during the afternoon; D. Dowd, Timothy Hickey, Edward Downes and John Ryley from 4 to 6; John Sheedy, James Eldred, Mr. Duffy and M. Buss from 6 to 8; John Doyle, James Donovan, Patrick English, John Harnedy, from 8 to 10; Jeremiah Looney, Patrick Brady, Patrick Sullivan, Timothy O'Sullivan, from 10 to 12; John Coyle, William McIntosh, William Tamany, Patrick McDonald, from 12 to 2 a.m.; William Burke, Frank McDonald, Martin Callaghan and Thomas Lundergan, from 2 until 4; James Smith, Michael Whalen, Joseph McDonald, Charles Hurley.

Gas Masks Now in Use

The gas masks now being manufactured in this country for our army are the result of the most careful experiment and practical tests since the first of this year. The mask now in use does not in every respect meet the demands necessitated by gas warfare today, but it is far in advance of those at first made and used. Early in the war, when gas was released from tanks or containers, if the wind were favorable dense clouds of the deadly poison would soon become dispersed with the winds and the soldiers would not need to wear their masks for such long periods of time as at present. Now gas shells are used and these explode intermittently often for long periods of time and so unexpectedly that the soldiers must keep on his mask as a safeguard all the time. The old-style mask was most uncomfortable and irritating as it had a clip which grips the wearer's nose, all breathing being through the mouth. Sometimes this became unbearable to the soldiers and frequently men would take off their masks for relief. In many cases this would result in the loss of life or in very serious injuries through being overcome with the gas fumes. In addition there was a rubber mouthpiece, through which air was obtained, and this had to be kept in the mouth all the time the mask was worn. This feature also tended to cause great discomfort; moreover, after being in use for a short time the glass lens would become dimmed with moisture and there was no way of remedying this, so the soldier would be almost helpless through failure to see.

A Frenchman named Tissot invented a method to have the air come in and strike against the glass. This has been improved upon as well as the style of mask which has no nore-clip or mouthpiece, and is known as the Akron Tissot mask. Attached to the snout of the mask, as it is called, is a three-way metal connection. One part has a flexible tube attached and fastened to a carbon container. All air is breathed through this tube, then through a clarifying tube attached to part of the metal container which comes inside the mask. This clarifying tube is V-shaped and is fastened by cloth pieces at extremities inside the rims of the glass lens, thereby keeping all moisture from the glass. Exhaust air is let out through the third part of the metal container by a valve attached thereto. This valve hangs outside the mask and is called a flutter valve. It is made of rubber, two pieces seamed up and made flat, so that air going out will not cause the valve to bulge, in which event poison gas might get in, with tragic results.

This valve is perhaps the most vital part of the mask and undergoes rigid inspection and tests before acceptance.

Your Share of the War

In the Literary Digest last week asw an eye-opening article called "Your Share of that $6,000,000,000." In this was a statement that the responsibility of making a success of the Liberty Loan for this year rests largely on families receiving incomes of $10,000 and under; —that over 80 per cent of the entire national income, or sixty billion, goes to such families.

The proof for this statement is found by understanding the results gained by statisticians who have been employed by the Bankers Trust Company of New York. They have been working on this question of representative incomes of the people of the United States and find that out of 23,500,000 family groups into which our population is divided, there are 23,140,000 that have incomes of $5,000 or less; and there are 21,175,000 families that receive $2,000 or less. This makes the group receivers of two-thirds of the national income.

These statistics were for one full year, and from them an interesting table has been worked out to show just what proportion of the family income may and should be spent on Government War Expense and how much on War Charities. The table begins with a family income group of $1000 to $2000 a year, which should contribute $209 to War Expense and $7,00 to War Charities. It goes on through those receiving $5000 to $6000, which should put $1795 in War Expense and $58 on Charities; those with $10,000 to $15,000 income should put $5450 and $175 in the respective war activities; those receiving $50,000 to $60,000 incomes should put $32,862 and $1000 respectively; those receiving $100,000 to $150,000 incomes $81,795 and $2600 respectively, and on up to an income of $5,000,000, which should spend $9,255,000 on War Expense and $297,000 on War Charities.

It would be an excellent idea to have this table for reference and make one's contributions accordingly.

LETTERS FROM ABROAD

Passages from Letters Written by Andover Boys

The war still goes on but it is in the Allies' favor by all means. I missed one week (last week), and did not write a letter to you. I have a little bit of an excuse to make this week. I am no longer with the 102nd Field Artillery and I am far away from all the boys I came over with. I was transferred last Sunday to Headquarters First Army, Office of the Inspector General, for duty as stenographer.

As I was at the front at the time, I had quite a trip to make. There being no means of transportation, the Adjutant said, "You will have to make it in the best way possible." This I did by hopping tracks and walking. It must have been a distance of about twelve or fifteen kilometers at least. I reached the railhead about noon and here they gave me the interesting news that the train did not pull out until that night. I managed to land two good feeds with some engineers who were near, so was all set as far as eats were concerned. Well, this train finally pulled in about 8 o'clock (not 5 o'clock) as stated, in the form of a freight car. I piled into this freight car (an American freight car), unrolled my roll and got set for the night. It sure was some night and I thought I was going over the Rocky Mountains. At daybreak we found ourselves in a small station, probably as big as Ballardvale. Here we got off and walked a few hundred yards to another station where we hopped another freight train. After riding a few hours we landed in a good-sized station where we got first-class travelling. I landed at the Headquarters about 8 o'clock that night. Here I checked in and reported to the barracks.

Let me tell you it is some different working back in the city where their houses and stores are standing and to be able to see some civilians once in a while. Another thing is one is always sure of a place to sleep. Nice and dry and the cots are very soft. Anyway I have had a year of campaigning and travelling around France and think now that things will be a little easier. Our office is in a swell house, with a nice big fireplace and good lights. The town is a very clean one and fairly good-sized. The people are very sociable and pleasant. They have an Army Commissary in the town so we are able to buy almost anything at a reasonable price. Well, so much for the town and the new job.

I promised to send some candy to the boys at the front along with some cigarettes, and I am going to do it just as soon as I get set.

Now about the mail. I guess it will be some time before I receive any letters from you folks. When a man is transferred like this the mail is delayed to a certain extent. Of course the mail for the next month at least will go to the 102nd Regiment.

All the boys were in fine health when I left them. I was talking with Al McKee two days before I left the front; also George Saunders and Joseph Daley.

GEORGE C. NAPIER

The latter part of July, when I last wrote, I was stopping in a town waiting to advance. We were delayed there quite a bit, having met some very severe and stubborn resistance. I was well, but expected at any moment to pick a Boche shell out of my body, for they were coming over pretty steadily at the time.

Everything here is dead,—nothing to look at but trenches, dugouts or ruins that are tumbled and twisted into all shapes imaginable. These are not very good entertainers when a fellow feels like having a good time and amusing himself!

No doubt you have read about our success in the first drive which started July 18. We bagged many thousands of prisoners, not saying anything of the wounded or the dead that lay in the field trodden under our swift advance,—a sight I will always remember.

After reaching all of our objectives, meeting sometimes with very severe and stubborn resistance, we drew back to reorganize our troops:—that is, to fill in all vacancies that existed. We drilled and worked unceasingly for our recent little trick, and met with great success, considering the time of two weeks to rehearse our little "role". Believe me, it was a dead walk-away, just like taking candy from a kid! We are going to draw back shortly, having wiped a whole salient off the Boches' map. We are looking forward to a couple of weeks more of said rehearsal, although our casualties were next to nothing. I am just hoping for sunshine and dry weather so we can gather in another harvest of fruit in the form of the Boche, before the season closes, for winter will soon be upon us. It is very cool with continual rain, almost every day is a wet day, but what does a wetting amount to anyway, just as long as you are accomplishing the task that is bringing us nearer home every day? Here's hoping that we get another good wallop at the Boche before our big show goes into winter quarters!

I was talking with Top Sergeant Daley the other day and he is in the best of health.

You will be pleased to hear that I am at last leaving hospital. I was marked out yesterday, but won't leave until next Friday.

I can hardly wait until Saturday, just to be free from the army for a few days. I intend to have a gay old time in Dundee, and my pal who is going out with me has invited me to spend a few days in Glasgow with his people, but it will greatly depend upon the amount of leave I get.

I have also been invited to spend a few days with a chap in Edinburgh. I don't know if I told you about this chap. He says I saved his life, and wants me to go and visit his people. They have been very good to me ever since they wrote and thanked me for bringing him in. He was lying wounded in front of our lines and I went out and brought him in. But I'll tell you all about it when I get home.

His people have made a hero of me ever since, and I have received many a good parcel from them. And all this happened the same day as John Aitken, from Brechin Terrace, was killed, over two years ago; and they still insist upon my visiting them.

I had a letter from Frank Nicoll last we k and he was telling me all the Andover boys in his battery were still sticking to it; but a few of the chaps in the 101st Infantry were wounded. He met his brother Claude, and Jim Caldwell out there.

A Happy Family

One of the happiest patients at the Base Hospital on Emery Hill today was a man named DeSpirito who, with his eight small children, was ready to go to his home on Valley street as cured. The mother is at the General Hospital. Since being admitted to the hospital several days ago this family has been housed in one tent and has attracted a lot of attention from the doctors and nurses. Today as the man sat on the side of a cot with the children close by him he was all smiles. He was patriotic, too, as was evidenced by the Fourth Loan button which he wore in his buttonhole.—Lawrence Tel gram

SPECIAL SINGING SERVICE

Combined Choirs of Christ Church Will Sing at the Church Next Sunday

The combined choirs of Christ church, consisting of the men and boys of the regular choir, and young ladies from the auxiliary choir, will sing at the 10.30 o'clock service on next Sunday morning. Following the custom of the early Christians, hymns appropriate to these times of stress will be sung. "And at midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns unto God, and the prisoners were listening to them."—Acts xvi 25. "Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns, and spiritual songs; singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord."—Eph. v. 19; Col. iii. 16.

"Nothing so lifted up and, as it were, wingeth the soul, so freeth it from earth and looseth it from the chains of the body, so leadeth it into wisdom and a contempt of all earthly things, as the choral symphony of a sacred hymn."—S. Chrysoston.

The order of service will be as follows:

Organ Prelude in A flat Parker
Processional
Hymn 421, "Lead us, heavenly Father, lead us" Haydn
Hymn 418, "O God, our help in ages past" Croft

KILLING THE INFLUENZA

water for hot-water bottles, and also ice from a refrigerator for the icebags.

Near these streets is also the diet kitchen, in charge of Miss Madeline E. Mahoney. This house contains three rooms, in one of which is an electric dish-washer for sterilizing dishes used. The plates and spoons are wooden and can be burned at once,—cups, therefore, are about the only china used. There are large ovens for keeping the food hot and there is always cooked and ready to serve, heated milk, hot water and hot chocolate. One hundred and thirty-five patients is the average number served daily, and meals are sent out in two schedules; the day schedule begins at 6 a.m. and continues until 6 p.m., including seven meals, since they are sent out every two hours. The evening schedule begins at 9 and meals go out then, at 12, at 3, and at 6 o'clock. There is a large gas range upon which smaller orders may be cooked and the patients who are especially ill have luxuries, such as oranges, tea, etc. Jelly is an important item in the diet and a large cupboard full of delicious jelly donations is kept under lock and key.

Every bit of the garbage and all other waste is burned in a large regulation army incinerator, while all bedding and other articles used in the sick-room have their special houses in which they are sterilized and cared for.

The patients during the sunshiny days may sit or lie out of doors in front of their tents in the streets, and certainly the clear, high air and the magnificent view of the river, the blue sky and the fields should be a great help toward restoring health.

Ten adjoining cubicles are being made for convalescing patients and they will soon be in use and will accommodate twenty persons. They are made high by being on raised poles, and all sides of the room may be opened durnig the day to let in all possible air and sunshine. These rooms open into a long corridor and have the advantage of allowing for future additions, should the need arise. There is every convenience in the way of toilet arrangements, and a kitchen with sink and heating possibilities. With electric lights all over the camp, with heating arrangements, and with many other convenjences possible, there is a quality of permanence that could scarcely be expected in so short a time. All arrangements have been made with the future in mind, so that surely this camp should be practical for use in other similar demands.

One of the most noreworthy features of the camp is the Red Cross headquarters which is in charge of Mrs. Paul Clay and which has been maintained from the first by the voluntary assistance of the following committee:— Mrs. J. H. Hunter, chairman; Mrs. Henry Dearborn, Miss Mary Lannigan, Miss Myra Sweeney, Mrs. Harrison, Miss Anna Churchill, Mrs. G. B. Sargent, Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. George Gage, Miss Webster, all of Lawrence, and Mrs. Jerome Cross and Miss Margaret Curran of Andover. These rooms are always open, and as Major Durant said, "These Red Cross workers have helped in every possible way." D. J. Murphy, chairman of the Lawrence Board of Health, added that "they have done 100 per cent more than that even", so that too great praise cannot be given to show appreciation for the work of this Lawrence branch of the American Red Cross. They have furnished six hundred masks every day,—they have full charge of the laundry, to see that it is sent and returned,—they got together in a very short time over 1700 pairs of blankets and over 60 dozen bath towels. They have made over 200 utility bags for the convenience of the patients and in one day they had made 400 newspaper bath-pads. They furnished their own National Guard with sweaters and helmets, and last week they supplied these necessary articles to the Andover Guard. Miss Irene Gurdy, who has charge of the women's motor corps, is on duty at night and at no time are the rooms left with no one in charge.

In this building is also a room containing medicines and medical supplies and a cloak-room used by the many nurses.

These nurses are under the supervision of Mrs. Staebler, who was called here over a week ago after an epidemic tangle which she had successfully straightened out in the health situation at Chelsea. She has her headquarters in a separate house where a stenographer keeps the records and from which place she can keep track of every detail of this important feature. The nurses are on twelve-hour shifts from 8 to 8 o'clock, and the day nurses have one hour off in which to rest. At 9 o'clock and at 3.30 during the night these nurses and orderlies are served hot coffee and chocolate. They are also furnished with sweaters, paper jackets, overshoes and for rainy nights, rubber raincoats, hats and boots. It is hoped that a graduate nurse will be in charge of each ward but at present this is not possible and in several there are now senior pupil nurses from the local hospitals. Each ward consists of fifteen tents, with two beds in each tent, making thirty patients to a ward. No one under twenty-one years of age is allowed to be a nurse here, although at first there were many very young and inexperienced girls on duty. It is exceedingly difficult to get orderlies but the nurses have been splendid in coming forward to help. Every nurse receives a salary and many have had no experience, other than what one gets in the Red Cross Home Nursing courses.

Last, but by no means least, is the great work being accomplished by the Andover men of the Home Guard. Major Charles E. Durant of the State Guard Medical Corps, who is a noted surgeon of Haverhill, said that this was an excellent company, and his praise is valuable. He has full charge of the administration of the camp and is their commander. Lieutenant Mellen is the only other permanent commissioned officer there and he is the supervisor of the medical staff and is known as the M. O., or Medical Officer. The medical staff is made up of several members of the Volunteer Medical Service Corps, while others are fourth-year medical students from Harvard and Tufts colleges. Their work is confined entirely to the medical workings of the camp.

The full responsibility of the military end is on Major Durant, who is the commanding officer and who is now at the head of the Andover Company.

The quarters of these men are on one street and there are nine men in each tent. Due to the generosity of the Andover Public Safety Committee there is an oil heater in each tent and the cots have been raised on wooden legs so that the men need not sleep on the ground. At the departure of Top Sergeant H. G. Tyer, Sergeant Hamblin has been promoted to that rank by Captain Page, and to take his place Corporal Alfred Robb is now sergeant and D. H. Rea has been made corporal. Mess Sergeant Christie has reason to be proud of his clean and sanitary kitchen and all the officers, men, and nurses testify to the excellence of the food served in the camp. The Home Guard kitchen was spotless, the shelves in perfect order and most appetizing meals are served there. The following menus prove that the men certainly are not starving: Breakfast—Oatmeal, dropped eggs on toast, bread and butter, coffee. Dinner—Tomato soup, beef pie, tapioca pudding. Supper—Hash with vegetables, baked potatoes, apple pandowdy, bread and butter and cocoa.

The camp is run on the strictest economy of food and the average amount of waste is exceedingly slight under Mr. Christie's regime, only one-half a can of garbage being burned each day.

The men all seem to be in fine health and the regular hours and splendid sleep they get in the open air is undoubtedly making up for the other physical discomforts of camp life. They certainly deserve much credit for the spirit o patriotism which led them to join the Home Guard and for the way in which they responded to the call to Lawrence.

Don't Forget to Turn Clock Back

October 27 is the day originally planned for the turning back of the hands of the clock one hour. There has been much agitation in regard to the efficacy of this move but on Oct. 17 it was decided definitely at a conference of congressional leaders and Mr. Baruch that the existing daylight-saving law should give way to the old regime. Therefore, when you go to bed Saturday night don't forget to turn the hands of your clock back one hour.

LOCAL MAN'S STORY

Of a State and National Figure J. F. O'Connell's Estimate of Henry B. Endicott

Few writers of current news can see dominant features more clearly or portray them more vividly than J. F. O'Connell, an Andover man, whose publicity work has given him a high place among Massachusetts publicity workers.

As a volunteer worker in the State Public Safety Committee, Mr. O'Connell was given direction of the publicity work for that organization, and thus has a first-hand opportunity to see the subject of an article which we are reproducing from "System", that tells of Massachusetts's most striking character of all those who are "doing things" these days.

Henry B. Endicott took his hat and coat from the peg in his Boston office one day in February, 1917. He casually remarked: "I'm going to a meeting at the State House—I won't be back for a while."

He hasn't been back since.

Massachusetts put him on a job that might best be described as general manager of the state for war, although he is officially known as executive manager of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, and as national and state food administrator for Massachusetst.

Endicott is the senior member of Endicott, Johnson and Company. When he picked up his hat and coat that raw February day he had not the slightest intention of doing anything but to talk over some plans for special organization of the state on a war basis, perhaps appoint somebody as executive secretary to run the thing, and return in a couple of hours to take up, where he had left off, the affairs of a company that makes 75,000 pairs of shoes every working day, and employs 14,000 people to do it.

The job at the State House was to find a big executive to organize for carrying on the war. The members of the governor's committee were scratching their heads, naming over possibilities, figuring on paying a huge salary—all without making any progress—when Endicott quietly remarked: "Do you think I'd do?"

"Do you mean it?" said Chairman Storrow.

"Sure I do." was the answer. "I've never done anything worth while for my country and if you folks think I'm big enough for the job I'll start now."

That, in a nutshell, is how it happened. And for the next few days the quiet, effective, kindly faced man who has become the most striking figure in the Commonwealth was amazed as he read staring headlines about the millionaire shoe manufacturer who was going to work for the people of Massachusetts, days, nights, and Sundays; and they wouldn't have to dig down for any salary.

Endicott was not well known in Massachusetts then. In the shoe-trade he was, of course, recognized as a leader and a business organizer. Furthermore, the fact that two prosperous industrial communities—Endicott and Johnson, both in New York—had been named after the partners, was a pretty good sign that their people considered the heads of the ordinary organization no ordinary men. But while the wise ones in business and political circles were asking each other, "Just what sort of a chap is he?" the answer came in characteristic Endicott fashion—through action.

The Gloucester fishmen had refused to sail for the fishing grounds on a certain day because of a disputed question of wages and conditions between themselves and their employers. The fish food problem for Massachusetts and the country at large began to look serious. Without an official portfolio or statutory power, Endicott hesitated to interfere at first. But when the local and federal mediators failed after a month of negotiation, somebody suggested Endicott. So, with the two labor representatives from the Committee on Public Safety, he rode over the road to Gloucester one day and brought about a settlement within forty-eight hours.

This was the beginning; but his real effectiveness was not generally appreciated until he settled, one after the other, formidable strikes engendered from wartime conditions among the employees of the Boston and Albany, and of these cases did Endicott make the first move. But somehow, when the existing mediation agencies had failed, Endicott would be asked by both sides to sit in and hear the story.

Like snow before a warm spring rain the difficulties would melt away. Tom, the mechanic, would find that Smith, the superintendent, was really a pretty good scout, with a desire for fair play and a job to hold the same as the boys in the shop. So, spiced with a quaint story or two and a discussion of the differences, the first meeting would adjourn with the men promising to go back to work in the morning and leave the details to Endicott.

As a result there are at work today in Massachusetts approximately 200,000 skilled and unskilled laborers in industries necessary to the winning of the war, who might otherwise be walking the streets embittered agains their employers, or going elsewhere for employment. Only the other day Endicott successfully settled his hundredth labor dispute and established a record for single arbitrator that is probably without parallel.

He averted the tie-up of the telephone properties in New England by settling a dispute between the company and the operators; sent the 9,000 or more employees of the Fore River Government Shipbuilding Company back to the yards after their strike had been in progress several days; and within a few hours of the time when the employees of the Boston Elevated—the big transportation system of the city—were about to walk out he arrived at a mutually satisfactory decision that kept the wheels rolling and thousands of men and women at work.

Much of Endicott's time has been consumed in settling industrial disputes. But these activities have been only a small part of his task. As state food administrator, his organizing ability has been splendidly exemplified. In a short time he rounded up the best men and women in the state and soon a generous slice of the new section of the State House was humming. So quickly and effectively were the hotel, restaurant and clubmen of the state brought into accord with the work that Endicott was soon able to report to Washington that the saving in public eating places alone in a single month would have been sufficient to feed the entire national army of 2,000,000 men for about two days.

Endicott's simplicity is Lincolnesque. With his many quaint stories you are continually reminded of descriptions of the great Emancipator. Those who have sat with him in the various conferences are at a loss to tell just what it is that breeds a new atmosphere of mutual good will and respect, so fugitive and gentle are his touches. It may be the gentle remark, "I suppose it isn't much fun walking the streets these cold days, boys"; or the query on the other side: "This isn't getting the war stuff to tidewater, is it, Smith?" that starts men thinking.

Endicott conducts his own factories on the open-shop plan. He hasn't had a strike in his thirty-five years of business. He gets along famously with union leaders and often jocosely remarks: "I'll make open shop men out of them, or they'll make a union man of me." But as his rates of wages and the welfare features of his plant are superior to many factories, the conditions inspire warm commendation from advanced labor men.

Genuine democracy is the pervading rule at the big shoe plants. It is to this feeling that the partners attribute their uniformly amicable relations with their employees.

"When we started in, some thirty years ago," said Endicott, "we had about 1000 employees and the first year we did a business of about $500,000. Now we employ about 15,000 people and and have annual sales of $60,000,000 a year. Neither I nor my partners claim the main credit for this. We think it should be split fairly with those who have worked for us so loyally all these years.

"Our labor turnover is practically negligible. We attribute this to the atmosphere of contentment created jointly by the working force and the management. I suppose some of our industrial contentment might be attributed to the many so-called 'welfare' plans in vogue. We have our swimming-pools, tennis courts that are lighted at night, dance halls, a library, and playgrounds. Then there are baseball teams that have developed the most virulent type of baseball fan in New York State.

"We adopted the eight-hour day because we felt it was just. We knew that we were being given genuinely loyal work, so we felt we should give everybody a little more time. We have never regretted it.

"The workers' problems are our problems. Because of the great industrial growth, land and property became more valuable and some of the landlords raised the rents. We felt this was unreasonable, so we built a number of houses for our people and turned them over on an easy-payment basis.

"In our big dining-rooms we feed 10,000 people three times each day, Sunday included, giving a full-course meal at 15 cents. We find it good business, as we supply appetizing, sustaining food, and well-nourished employees are what we want in our plants. All of these plans are simply good business propositions and we dislike to hear the enterprises referred to as philanthropies. The high-grade, intelligent men and women of our plant would be the first to resent the idea of philanthropy. They are our partners and entitled to all the comforts we can afford.

"In the section where our plants are located we developed the present generation of shoemakers! Now the boys and girls for miles around, while in school, count upon some day entering our employ. Therefore, we believe it is our duty to keep our standards so high that the plants will always attract the young folks."

Sending Carrier Pigeons by Balloon

To increase the usefulness of pigeons in warfare, wire cages, each just large enough for one bird, are now in use, says the November Popular Mechanics Magazine. The cages carry grain for the birds, and pencils and paper for marooned dispatch writers. They are attached to small balloons that are used when wind conditions are favorable, and also to parachutes designed to be dropped from low-flying aeroplanes. On the other hand, several of them may be strapped to a trained dog and conveyed by him to the desired point. All of which is for the purpose of establishing communication with detachments that become cut off from the main body of troops and, while resisting capture, have no means of immediate escape without outside assistance. The wire cages are arranged so that the birds may be fed without being removed from them, and, furthermore, messages may be inserted in the pellets the pig ons carry without the latter being handled, or even touched.

Miss Merle Wilkinson is spending several days with relatives in Reading.

Miss Esther Trow is the guest of her brother, George Trow, of Wilmington.

The local branch library will be open Saturday afternoon and evening as usual.

John Haggerty and men are at work cleaning up our streets and gutters and already have greatly improved the appearance of the village.

A party of young people from Lawrence, Boston and Andover spent last Saturday and Sunday in a very enjoyable manner at one of Harwood's bungalows on the Shawsheen.

While there are a number of cases of influenza still in our village, the authorities have decided to open our churches and trust to the individual efforts of our people to hold in check the threatening disease.

The annual meeting of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will be held in the vestry Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock for the election of officers for the ensuing year and for any other business that may legally come before the meeting. A full attendance of the members is required.

The local board of health has removed their ban on the churches and the midweek services were held as usual last evening at 7.30 o'clock, and the regular services will be held in the churches on the coming Sunday. It is expected there will be a good attendance at the local churches. It is urged that every one goes, to show thanksgiving for the manner in which our village has been spared during these times of epidemic and war.

Ballardvale broke her record in the Fourth Liberty Loan, nearly quadrupling the amount of bonds purchased in the third loan. This was largely due to the generous purchase by the Ballard Vale Mills Company. The total amount credited to 141 subscribers was $41,150. Eighty-one residents of the village reported that they had subscribed in other places where they were employed. Counting their purchases, the total record for the village would be nearly $50,000. The committees of men and women ably supplemented each other in the canvass of the village.

The executive committee of the Ballardvale Village Improvement Society met in their new society room Monday evening and were delighted with its attractive appearance. The committee, with the cooperation of the town officials, have produced a most satisfactory result. Plans are underway for a community reception in November, when the room will have been fully furnished and equipped. Further announcement will be made later. This room will provide a most convenient and attractive meeting-place for the people of the village, filling a long-felt want. The personal interest of Selectman Eames and the other members of the board in putting the room in proper condition is greatly appreciated by the society.

ALWAYS HUNGRY AT NIGHT

Kansas City Man Beginning to Fear He Is Afflicted With an Unpatriotic Stomach.

A Kansas City man who is trying to be very patriotic is beginning to wonder if he is not cursed with a pro-German stomach. During the daytime, when he is up on his feet, he has no trouble observing the food regulations, but just as soon as he lies down at night to go to sleep, his stomach takes advantage of the fact that he is flat on his back and refuses to give way to Morpheus until he eats again.

"Sometimes I manage to get to sleep without taking on an extra cargo of food," he says. "But when I do I usually wake up in the middle of the night with a mad craving for food, and the only way I can get back to sleep is to get up, go out to the kitchen and cook myself some hot food."

The man says he has tried his best to overcome this hunger habit, but is unable to do so. Several times a week he will go to the kitchen in the middle of the night, put on a skillet and fry a piece of ham, or bacon and eggs, and, after eating an ordinary size meal, will go back to bed and sleep. He says he has tried eating fruits and light food, but his stomach will have none of these and insists upon meats. Often when he is standing over a skillet dressed only in his pajamas in the dead of night he says he feels like a thief stealing food, while others who patriotically observe all of Mr. Hoover's regulations are asleep.

"Maybe you have a tapeworm with Teutonic leanings," a friend suggested.

"Maybe I have," the man replied, sadly, "but I think it is an inherited habit that is just getting a grip on me. I remember when my folks lived on a farm near Pomeroy. When I was just a kid my father used to have to get up in the night and eat as I do. But it is only recently that I have become addicted to the habit, and it is only since the food regulations became so strict that I have worried about it."

"Maybe your wife's cooking is not as good as it used to be," was the next logical suggestion.

"Don't you ever think it isn't, young man!" the glutton of the darkness replied indignantly. "My wife, sir, is the best cook in Kansas City! You may accuse me of having German tapeworm or of having an unpatriotic stomach, but you must not reflect upon my wife's culinary art. Good evening, sir!"

Eels Are Eels.

John Treadwell Nichols, assistant curator of the department of ichthyology of the American Museum of Natural History, has done his bit for the food supply by an effort to lessen the prejudice against eels.

The chapter of the cookbook devoted to eels should begin: "First catch your eel; then forget how it looks."

The trouble with eating eels is at the start. After the first plate of eels the reluctant customer is ready for more.

Mr. Nichols assures us that eels have, in fact, no relationship with snakes. They have developed their form and sinuosity by their habit of poking into cracks and crannies of waterbeds. They are true fishes and should not be victims of the prejudice against snakes.

The classic way to cook eels is to skin them, clean them, cut them into lengths and fry in butter. "Many persons," says Mr. Nichols, "find them delicious." That's no lie.—Buffalo Enquirer.

Unfortunate Expression.

Although our new war secretary, Lord Milner, cannot exactly be said to shine as a humorist, he can enjoy a good story against himself, as witness the following, which he is fond of relating.

Some years ago, fresh from his South African triumphs, he addressed an audience of undergraduates at his old university.

"We must remember not merely the beauty of the individual colleges, but the beauty of Oxford as a whole. And what a whole it is."

"Hear, hear!" yelled the varsity men. "Yes, what a hole!" they groaned. "What a beastly hole!"

Then it dawned upon Lord Milner that this was a sentiment he would rather have expressed differently.—Pearson's Weekly.

Poland's Long-Lost Crown.

When the Prussians took possession of Cracow, in 1794, the Polish kingdom ceased to exist. The king of Prussia coveted the traditional diadem of Poland's kings for his own adornment. It had, however, disappeared mysteriously, and the Prussian king was balked of his wish. In January, 1914, seven months before the world war broke out, during a severe storm, lightning struck a stately elm close to the city and brought to light a secret treasure which had lain buried at its roots for 123 years, the long-lost crown of Poland.

Scenery on the Way.

"The first days out I was seasick, later I was homesick, but before the end of the trip I was feeling fine.

RED CROSS BENEFIT

Mrs. Martin under Auspices of the Tuesday Club Will Read "If I Were King"

If present indications are fulfilled, the Red Cross benefit in the town hall a week from tonight will be a great success. Mrs. Martin has given "If I Were King" in all parts of the country and has met with tremendous success wherever she has been. She read this summer before a thousand soldiers at New Castle and they begged her to come again.

One woman, from Fort Worth, Texas, who was summering in New Hampshire, heard Mrs. Martin and went home with the intention of persuading the club women of her city to pay her expenses to Fort Worth that others might enjoy her as she had done. Another woman of this town heard her too, and has bought ten tickets which she is going to present to friends. The tickets cost 50 cents and will entitle one not only to an evening's entertainment but will help to increase the funds of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Martin will be assisted by several members of the Phillips Academy orchestra, who have kindly given their services to help make the evening a success. Tickets will be on sale at the Bookstore and can be bought at the

The I. & R. Relative to Our Senators and Suffrage

We confess that we are not a little puzzled to understand why our always esteemed local contemporary should severely chastise Senators Lodge and Weeks for having voted against the Federal woman suffrage amendment. If our contemporary were not the ardent champion it is of the Initiative and Referendum, we might understand why it should condemn the action of our two Senators. But irrespective of any personal opinion that either Senator Lodge or Senator Weeks may entertain, the fact stands out that they faithfully represented the last recorded sentiment of Massachusetts voters on the question of woman suffrage.

In 1915, after the Legislature had twice voted in favor of extending the right of suffrage to the women of Massachusetts, the voters were asked to pass on the question themselves, and for their guidance the advocates of suffrage carried on an active campaign. When the vote on this referendum had been tabulated it was found that 163,406 voters were for the amendment, and 295,489 were against it. With a clear majority of 132,083 here in Massachusetts in opposition to "votes for women", how could Senators Lodge and Weeks consistently support the proposed Federal amendment?

We do not say that our two Senators would necessarily have voted differently had the majority been the other way; both are men of independence and courage and both conceive it to be their privilege and their duty to exercise their best judgment on all matters coming before them as senators. Had their judgment in this instance been at variance with the popular vote, we may doubt whether they would have been recorded differently. But it so happens that in opposing the suffrage amendment they acted in strict accord with the last known mandate of the voters.

If the voice of the people, as heard at the ballot box, is the only voice our two Senators should hear, then why berate Messrs. Lodge and Weeks for doing the bidding of that voice? Is the referendum something to be respected only when it accords with personal opinion, or is it something to be accepted as establishing right action regardless of that opinion? Our contemporary refuses to be governed by the 132,000 plurality against woman suffrage, yet it tells us that we must have the initiative and referendum in order that our legislators may be properly instructed as to the desires of the people. The only crime that Senators Lodge and Weeks appear to have committed in this instance is in voting as the voters told them to vote. If they had done otherwise they would have been cast on the other horn of the dilemma. They would have been unmindful of the popular will and their perversity would have been cited as a convincing reason why the I. and R. is necessary to our political salvation.—Springfield Union

MRS. JOHN E. SMITH

Mrs. John E. Smith died at her home at 40 Elm street last Saturday, October 19. She was born in St. John, New Brunswick, fifty-eight years ago but has been in this town for several years, where she had won many friends through her sweet and unassuming ways. Her husband, who was well-known in town, died in May, 1916, and she has felt his loss keenly since that time. Her death was due to heart trouble. She is survived by three daughters.

The funeral service was held Monday at the home and was conducted by Rev. F. A. Wilson. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

GEORGE CHESTER SPALDING

George Chester Spalding, who for several years had been a faithful and pleasant clerk at Lowe's Drug Store in this town, died at his home on Avon street Wednesday, October 23. He was twenty-nine years of age, and had come to Andover from Somerville after his school days were over.

A short time ago he left the employ of Mr. Lowe and went to Lawrence as a clerk in the Riker Jaynes pharmacy. Only two weeks ago he began work as manager of one of the Liggett stores in Haverhill, where he was employed at the time of his death from pneumonia.

He was always obliging and helpful and made an ideal clerk, so that the news of his death comes as a shock to his many acquaintances in this vicinity.

He was noble grand of Andover lodge, 230, I.O.O.F. He is survived by his wife, Marion (Millett); a daughter, Doris; his parents, who live in Lincoln, and a brother, Albert, of West Somerville.

The funeral was held this afternoon at two o'clock, with services by the Rev. E. Victor Bigelow. Burial will take place in the Tewksbury cemetery.

MARY A. COREY

Mrs. Mary A. Corey, aged thirty-one, died at her home on Pearson street, October 21, as a result of influenza. She was born in Ireland and leaves a husband, Hugh Corey.

The funeral was private and burial was in St. Augustine's cemetery.

Longing for the Laddies

There's a longing in our heart,
That grows stronger day by day,
To see our soldier laddies
Who have been so long away.
Nobly fighting with our Allies,
Doing their "bit" across the sea
To make the old world better
And tame proud Germany.

CHORUS:—
O we miss them in the old town.
At home, and in the "Square";
We miss their merry laughter
That oft resounded there.
All is so sad and lonely
That once was blithe and gay.
Every day now seems like Sunday
Since the boys all went away.

The girls are just as charming
As the day they said goodbye,
Though the smile has left their dimpled cheeks
And a tear oft dims their eye;
There is many a loving mother
In town, bowed down with care,
Whose weary heart is longing
For her laddie over there.

At night when we go to town
And walk around the "Square"
We miss the jolly faces
Of the boys who mingled there;
Some of them will ne'er return
While some the Lord will spare
To greet us with a cheery smile
Down in old Elm Square.

O that will be a happy day
When this wicked war will cease,
And the nations of the world
Will turn their thoughts to peace.
We will have a great rejoicing,
All the town folks will be there,
To welcome home our laddies,
To dear old Elm Square.

Questionnaires Are Out

Questionnaires are being received by Andover men and the Board of Legal Advisors is meeting, every evening at the town hall, those who wish their assistance. They began these sessions Thursday and are there from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Why does not Mr. Charles Hutchins of Concord, who needs a copy of Abiel Abbott's funeral sermon delivered in 1739, write to the Congressional Library and find it? They secured a copy, or had it listed in Andover historical documents. Some time ago I helped Mr. Ropes revise a list sent here for information, and looked over many pamphlets at the time.

Abiel Abbott, son of Deacon John Abbott and Elizabeth Flanders, died at twenty-three, May 18, 173 . Bailey's "Andover", page 441, says the sermon was the first printed memorial discourse found in Andover. The preface was written by Rev. Samuel Phillips. Why not get a typewritten copy of the one known to Miss Bailey apparently?

Had Good Reason

Mother—Why, Bobby, you don't generally keep on crying like this after your father has given you a spanking.

Bobby—I—I know it, ma; but he says I've got to sit down and think it over, and—and before I've always stood up and forgot it.—Boston Transcript.

America's accomplishment in France, quite aside from actual fighting, in material construction equals the building, in 15 months, of two cities, such as Kansa City and St. Louis, with their intervening railroad tracks and warehouses.—Clarence Ousley.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY NOTES

First Soccer Game Lost. Football Squad Has Excellent Material. Many Alumni Commissioned in Service

The first soccer game of the season was played last Saturday with the Chinese Collegians, including some former P. A. stars. The game was on the old Campus and was a fine, fast game to watch. The Chinese teamwork was too strong for the Andover team and the score was 5 to 2 in their favor. The lineup was:

| CHINESE | ANDOVER |
|---|---|
| Wei, g. | g. Stearns |
| Hsi, rb. | rb. Dayton |
| C. Y. Huang, lb. | lb. Cheney |
| Chan Kung, rh. | rh. May |
| H. Huang, ch. | ch. Mayers |
| Kwan, lh. | lh. Johnson, Hackett |
| Laing, rof. | rof. Cabell, Marshall |
| Li, rif. | rif. Bruce |
| Lui, cf. | cf. Fletcher |
| Hu, lif. | |
| | lif. Dole, Dow, Parkhurst, Gordon |
| Yeh Chen, lof. | lof. Mok |

Score: Chinese 5, Andover 2. Goals: Fletcher 2, Lui 5. Referee, Ryley; linesmen, Chen, Rhodes. Time, 2 hours 30 minutes.

The football eleven has been broken up considerably, as many of the boys have joined S.A.T.C. units. William Scott, captain-elect, is now on his way to Paris Island, N. C., to join the Marin Corps. Scammon and Ackerly have also joined the Marines. Other members of the school leave today, again robbing the football squad of good material. In spite of this, there seems to be some splendid material there, with some big men and the prospects of fast players. The team defeated a Naval Reserve team from Camp Plunkett, Wakefield, Wednesday, by a score of 20 to 6. Tomorrow they play a Naval Reserve team from Portsmouth, N. H. Francis Adams of Morton street has been elected captain of the team for the remainder of the season.

The following students have been elected as members of the Student Council for the school year: O. M. Whipple, president; G. H. Hewett '19, football manager; G. F. Callahan, track captain; G. R. Bailey '19, Society of Inquiry; G. F. Sawyer '19, Phillipian; C. M. Dole '19, musical clubs; C. S. Lunt, second honor roll; C. S. Gage, first honor roll; F. A. Flanders, T. Day, J. T. Houk, E. Peters, P. Wilson, class of 1919; G. B. Gallagher, H. Eudy, H. S. Pole, G. Hayden, class of 1920; E. Hills, F. F. Adams, class of 1921.

A statistical list of Phillips Academy men who are now in service has recently been compiled by Professor Forbes. This list shows an excellent percentage of the men who have gone from this school and have received commissions in the service of not only the United States but also, in several cases, from foreign countries.

Army—Two major-generals, one brigadier general, three colonels, nine lieutenant colonels, 30 majors, 132 captains, 170 first lieutenants, 172 second lieutenants, and five chaplains.

Navy—Eleven lieutenants, one paymaster, three assistant paymasters, 58 ensigns.

Total, 597. Of these nineteen have received the Croix de Guerre.

Andover Man Receives Appreciation

The following item from a recent issue of the Congregationalist regarding an Andover young man, will be of interest to his many friends in town. Rev. Harry Stevens Lowd, who has resigned his pastorate at East Walpole and Islington, Mass., to enter Y. M. C. A. work in France, has been given a wrist watch, a comfort kit and a purse of $75.00 by his people, in appreciation of his services for the past six years.

Newly Discovered Uses for Glue

With our government demanding all possible conservation in American households, several newly discovered uses for glue present to the thoughtful woman opportunities to prolong the life of household articles. As every family has, or should have, on hand a bottle or tube of good glue, the following practical suggestions can be acted upon without delay or expense.

To put new life in an old broom.—A teaspoonful of glue mixed in a basin of hot water poured over a broom and then allowed to thoroughly dry will greatly stiffen it, and prolong its usefulness and life.

When shoes become barked or scarred.—Very often a small piece of the leather is lifted or loosened. Don't cut it off and try to cover the place with blacking. Flatten the piece in place with a little glue and allow to dry. Then apply blacking and the surface will be as good as new.

For tears or rents in silk.—Another piece of silk or fabric of the same color placed under the tear with a thin coating of glue will bring the edges more firmly together than can be done with a needle. Allow to dry thoroughly and rent will be almost invisible.

A splendid way to keep rubbers from slipping.—Rubber overshoes often become so loose that they slip off at the heels, especially in the winter and spring when the ground is muddy or slushy. This annoying trouble can be entirely eliminated by gluing a felt band around the inside top of the rubber.

To protect furs and Woolens from moths.—It is commonly known that moths very much dislike the odor of ink in old newspapers. Several thicknesses of old newspapers firmly glued together may be made into the form of a bag and the garment placed inside. After the ends and all joints are firmly sealed with glue, the bag is absolutely moth and dust proof, and your protection from moths has cost practically nothing.

EPIDEMIC BAN REMOVED

ilies who have any illness are not to come to school, however, until the doctor gives permission, so there will be no danger of exposure or infection.

The library will also be opened then, so, on Monday, October 28, everything will again be running under the usual conditions.

The feeling of depression has been widespread and, although this town has been comparatively fortunate in her health situation, there will be a general atmosphere of relief when life becomes normal again. Even though there has not been illness in all families, everybody has felt so sympathetic and has been living under such a tension that it is hoped now the spirit of good health, sunshine and happiness may take the place of the depressing spirit of sickness.

The utmost precautions must be taken throughout the winter lest we have another influenza epidemic, and individual care of one's health must be the first consideration. The vaccine which is being used by the local physicians has proved very efficacious, and yet the best precaution is one that everyone may assume: namely, care in keeping physically fit and in observing normal conditions.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES

The Essex street bowling alleys reopened Thursday under the management of James Ross.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the Punchard High School football team will play the Johnson High School of North Andover.

Carleton Kimball of School street was at his home over the week-end. He is in the Intelligence Department at Camp Devens.

William Cronin and Roy Bowman are on the Villanova football team. They are former Punchard High School football stars and are now at that college in the S.A.T.C.

The Colonial theatre opened yesterday afternoon with a good attendance at the two performances. There has been some remodeling done and the theatre was as usual clean and well disinfected.

Tomorrow from 12 o'clock noon to 10 o'clock p.m., the board of registrars will be in session to register voters. This is the last date on which registration will be made before election.

Mrs. James Dooley, formerly Miss Helen Collins of Pine street, has gone to Ann Arbor, Michigan, to join her husband, Lieutenant Dooley, commanding officer of Company 9, S.A.T.C., at the University of Michigan.

In a letter to Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce of Lawrence from the executor of Lieutenant Bruce's affairs, Thomas F. Butz, he tells of the brave way in which the aviator met his death. He was in active service engaging in a fight with the enemy's machines, and this is the kind of death that makes a man a hero.

The fire department was called out last week, Friday, at 3.45 in the afternoon to extinguish a chimney fire at the residence of F. H. Jones on Central street. That evening at 8.12 the chimney caught fire a second time and Auto Combination No. 1 and Ladder 1 again responded.

2d Lieut. Timothy O'Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Sullivan of Washington avenue, had a few days' leave at his home last week. He reported Tuesday at Camp Meade, Md. having been transferred from Camp Zachary Taylor where he recently received his commission at the Artillery Officers' Training School.
